

About PETER DOCKER

FOUNDER, AUTHOR AND SPEAKER

Peter Docker, founder and author of Leading from the Jumpseat, co-author of Find Your Why and formerly a founding Igniter at Simon Sinek Inc., delivers the message that leadership is about lifting people up and giving them the space they need so that, when the time is right, they can take the lead.

Peter served for 25 years as a Royal Air Force senior officer, has been a Force Commander during combat flying operations and seen service across the globe. His career has spanned from professional pilot, to leading an aviation training and standards organization, teaching postgraduates at the UK's Defence College, to flying the British prime minister. Peter has also led multibillion-dollar international procurement projects and served as a crisis manager and former international negotiator for the UK government.

Drawing on his military career and over 14 years partnering with businesses around the world, Peter's goal now is to inspire others to Lead from the Jumpseat.

Peter and his team partner with clients across the spectrum of keynotes to long-term consulting to create a culture of Jumpseat Leadership. They come alongside companies who are seeking to do something they have never done before, such as leading through exponential growth, or ensuring the legacy of what they have built gets passed to the next generation of leaders to carry forward.

He is most excited to work with those who recognize the value of their team and want to ensure their people are equipped to lead into the next 10-15 years and beyond.
